The Fallen Leaves. We stand among the fallen leaves, Young children at our play, And laugh to see the yellow things Go rustling on their way; Right merrily we hunt them down, The autumn winds and we,

Or sunbeams gild the tree! With dancing feet we leap along Where withered boughs are strown Nor past, nor future checks our song-The present is our own. We stand among the fallen leaves, In youth's enchanted spring-

When Hope (who wearies at the last)

Nor pause to gaze where snow-drifts lie,

First spreads her eagle wing. We tread with steps of conscious strength Beneath the leafless trees, And the color kindles on our check As blows the winter breeze; While gazing toward the cold, gray sky, Clouded with snow and rain,

And the young spring again. We stand among the fallen leaves In manhood's haughty prime-When first our pausing hearts begin To love "the olden time;" And, as we gaze, we sigh to think How many a year hath passed, Since 'neath those cold and faded trees,

We wish the old year all past by,

Our footsteps wandered last; And old companions-now, perchance, Estranged, forgot, or dead-Come round us, as those autumn leaves Are crushed beneath our tread.

We stand among the fallen leaves In our own autumn day-And tottering on with feeble steps, Pursue our cheerless way. We look not back-too long ago Hath all we loved been lost; Nor forward-for we may not live To see our new hope crossed; But on we go-the sun's faint beam
